WHY IS NOW OPEN FOR EASY AND SUCCESSFUL COMPLETION OF A WORLD PEACE CHARTER

RAN FRANCISCO. — Complete agreement among the Big Five on voting procedure leaves the United Nations conference deadlocked and speeds the way to early and successful completion of a world peace charter.

A new agreement, waiving formal disputes in a world security council was announced by British secretary of state, who said the Big Five have been able to agree on all essential decisions relating to enforcement of peace and, except the parties to dispute, in all decisions for general settlement.

It was said the veto would not apply to the right of any nation to bring a dispute before the council for decision, and "no individual member of the council can alone prevent a majority vote on any issue by the council of a dispute or other issue brought to it by a majority."

This was the point on which Russia and the majority nations were divided to the last. The Big Five members would have the power to veto even a decision of a dispute.

Removal of the blockade which prevented the veto from being imposed in the number of conferences which have been held to get the world peace charter.

Those who concerned with writing charter provisions dealing with the security council, the power and efforts of the council to bring a dispute under its jurisdiction.

The working conference of the charter section dealing with the veto was held in the Big Five members' offices.

The break in the veto deadlock developed at a joint-division meeting of the Big Five members and Mr. Stettinius. Immediately the conference resumed its work.

The main question now remaining was whether the Big Five members would have the power to veto even a decision of a dispute.
